

Should you apply?

We're looking for inspiring new leaders that children can depend upon. Here's an outline of some of the experience and character that would make an ideal future DCS:

- A strong moral purpose and passion to champion children and young people and their outcomes.
- At least 3 years effective senior strategic leadership and management experience in local government children's services or related fields and sectors, though perhaps you feel you still want to consolidate your knowledge across the different component areas or be more confident in applying leadership skills to a more diverse range of services.
- If you fit these criteria, and you think you have the potential to become a Director of Children's Services within the next three years then apply.

In this first year, we will be giving priority to those who have the potential to become a Director in the next 18 months but if you are interested, apply anyway as we are building up a talent pool for future years.
